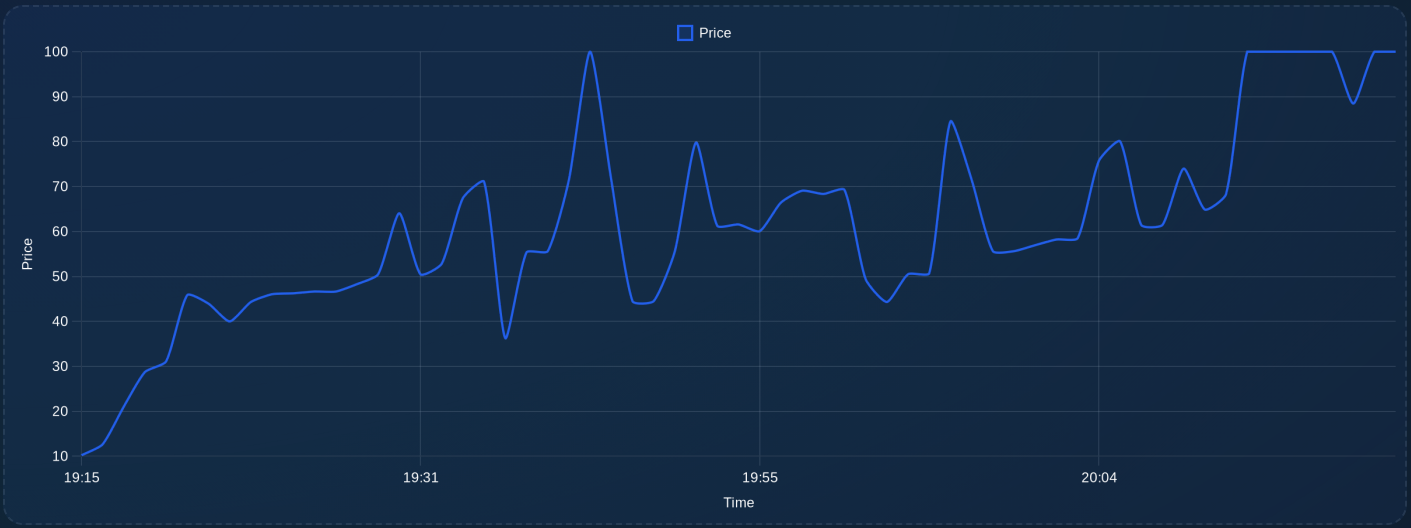
PRICE HISTORY



FEEDBACK HIGHLIGHTS

Investors express strong belief in Mylo Rewards, highlighting the team's potential and the innovative nature of the idea. However, there are concerns regarding the scalability of the product and the pricing strategy. Some investors suggest exploring broader market segments, such as targeting entrepreneurs and other demographics beyond students. The need for a clear monetization strategy is emphasized, with suggestions to increase pricing and implement a commission model. Overall, while the concept is well-received, actionable steps towards growth and market positioning are necessary.

Next groupon

(Eashan Uppal)

Why included: This suggests positioning Mylo Rewards as a competitive alternative in the market, indicating a clear market opportunity.

You should charge more for the product than 1k, need to scale morning person and incentivize the spread. You should take 1% from every sale to make more.

(Shane Issler)

Why included: This feedback provides a specific pricing strategy and revenue model that could enhance profitability.

Why not level up from student to entrepreneurs? More money, still loyal buyers? Moms? Athletes?

(Mike Ogilvie)

Why included: This suggests expanding the target market, which could lead to increased revenue streams.

Still too early

(David)

Why included: This indicates a need for further development or validation before pursuing aggressive growth strategies.
